To strengthen our team in Bangkok we are looking for

Regional Service Manager Thailand (m/f/d)

Your Contribution

Are you ready to take our Thailand office to the next level? We are looking for a dynamic manager with a passion for technology and customer service and a deep understanding of the Thai market. Become our central contact person

That's what your role is all about

- You are the first point of contact for our customers in Thailand and are able to answer their technical service enquiries directly or carry out troubleshooting yourself in order to ensure quick response and maintain our high standard of service in this region.
- You coordinate the deployment of our local technicians on site to ensure the smooth installation in Bangkok and shape the future with us.

and servicing of our machines and systems.

- You will be responsible for purchasing on site, e.g. importing spare parts, etc.
- You will support our local sales team and liaise closely with our local customers, both for ongoing support and for the acquisition of new customers.
- You will be responsible for the administrative and commercial agendas on site and act as an interface to the head office in Austria.
- You are familiar with the business practices in Thailand and will contribute this expertise to the further development of our business in these countries.
- The position involves travelling within Thailand and the surrounding countries.

You can utilise these skills

- You have a technical education with a degree from a renowned educational institution with focus on electrical engineering. You have rounded off this education with additional business training and you bring several years experience in both areas.
- Ideally, you have industry experience in bag production, fabric production and/or plastic recycling.
- You move with ease between cultures and business mentalities; your high cultural awareness let you work effectively with our customers and our colleagues in Austria.
- With your business-like, serious demeanor and your hands on mentality you will quickly gain the trust of our customers
- Your business language is English.

We can prepare this offer for you

- A competitive compensation package that includes both fixed and variable components, depending on your qualifications and experience.
- An exciting position in a global player and world market leader.
